

GOVTECH TODAY

SEPTEMBER 21, 2022

What's Next for New York City's Internet Master Plan?

After being put on hold in May 2022, the Internet Master Plan has been in a state of limbo as officials map the next steps. Another newly announced undertaking, however, promises to put a dent in the digital divide in the meantime. READ MORE

CONTENT PROVIDED BY EPROVAL

Standalone Platforms Mark Next Wave in Cloud-Computing

Big winners are applications like special event permitting that perform complex tasks and can connect to major payment gateways.

READ MORE

TOP STORIES

What One Library Is Doing With Federal Broadband Funding

For Chicago Ridge Public Library, funding from the Emergency Connectivity Fund has gone toward purchasing new laptops and Wi-Fi hot spots to help residents connect to the Internet. READ MORE

Cleveland Transit Partnership to Address Workers' Last-Mile Gap

The Greater Cleveland Regional Transit Authority is partnering with SHARE Mobility on a last-mile transportation solution for two suburban job centers where workers need better connections from transit to their destinations. READ MORE

QUESTION OF THE DAY

How many ants are there on Earth?

READ MORE

CONTENT PROVIDED BY EPROVAL

Special Event Permitting Platform Allows Applicants to Book Space First and Apply For Permit Later

Eproval announces new platform enhancement that will make it easier for applicants and reviewers to reserve space prior to submitting an event application.

READ MORE

MORE HEADLINES

Colorado Gives the Green Light to Paying Taxes With Crypto

'Cyber Gang' Lapsus$ Believed to Be Behind Uber Hack

Connecticut to Receive $52M for EV Charging Network Expansion

Cleveland Taps AI to Help City Fight Illegal Dumping

Broadband Providers Express Interest in Joplin, Mo.

Opinion: For Safety, Congress Must Act to Keep Space Clean

EDITOR'S CHOICE

California: Deadline Nears for IT Bills on Gov. Newsom's Desk

Joshua Edmonds Departing as Detroit Digital Inclusion Lead

Trends in Developing a New Cyber Workforce Strategy

INDUSTRY RESOURCES

You Can't Protect What You Can't See: A Guide to Modern API Security

Simplifying Cybersecurity Strategies to Address Modern Threats

5 Reasons Your Endpoint Security Could Be At Risk

MORE PAPERS

Join our mailing list and connect with us: LinkedIn / Twitter / Facebook

This email was sent to your email.

Unsubscribe | Opt out of all e.Republic email | Privacy Statement

©2022 e.Republic, Inc. All rights reserved | 100 Blue Ravine Rd, Folsom, CA 95630 | (916) 932-1300